2026 – Defensible
Clinical Compliance
Training

Compliance Training Challenges

- Excessive administrative burden: Faculty must manually create, update, deliver, track, and verify compliance training, diverting time from academic and clinical priorities.
- Risk of outdated or inconsistent content: Ongoing responsibility to monitor regulatory changes creates compliance and liability risk if training is incomplete or not current.
- Manual, error-prone student workflows: Screenshot uploads, certificate handling, and duplicate data entry into Exxat create friction for both students and staff.
- Lack of standardisation across departments: Each program manages compliance independently, leading to duplicated effort, silos, and inconsistent compliance practices.
- Audit and documentation pressure: Difficulty maintaining long-term, defensible records for hospitals, attestations, and potential legal review increases institutional risk.

Who is ComplianceJunction?

ComplianceJunction equips universities with accredited and up-to-date HIPAA, OSHA, Infection Control, Cybersecurity and many other categories of compliance training for healthcare — all in one place.

Integrated directly into Exxat, our training ensures students meet clinical compliance requirements before placement. Faculty and administrators gain real-time visibility, audit-ready reporting, and zero manual paperwork, so programs can focus on education, not chasing certificates.

Why does this matter now?

1. Compliance Is Getting Tougher

Healthcare rules are tightening. New mandates — HIPAA, OSHA, and state privacy laws — now hold individuals accountable, not just institutions.

2. Technology Raises New Risks

AI, telehealth, and cloud tools expand the risk surface. Training in HIPAA, Cybersecurity, and data ethics is vital to protect patient trust.

3. Mistakes Can Cost Your University and Students

Courts now view “failure to train” as negligence. Professionals face growing exposure in FWA, ethics, and harassment prevention.

4. Every Rotation Brings New Risks

Each new clinic, EHR system, or patient adds exposure. Trackable training keeps you safe and ready everywhere you work.

5. Hospital Systems Expect Students to Be Ready

Hospital systems expect fully trained students. ComplianceJunction helps you prove you’re prepared from day one.

Ensure your university exceeds compliance standards with ease

Testimonials

“We began our search for an alternative HIPAA training provider in 2020, and after several weeks of thorough evaluation, we selected ComplianceJunction. What immediately stood out was the depth and attention to detail in the training content, combined with a genuinely positive learner experience.

We have now been working with ComplianceJunction since 2021, and the training has continued to evolve alongside changes in healthcare practice, technology, and regulatory expectations. I’ve spent my entire career in the healthcare sector, and even so, I learned important and practical aspects of HIPAA through their training — they truly taught an old dog new tricks.

Most importantly, ComplianceJunction gives us confidence that our students are not just completing training, but are genuinely prepared for clinical placement.”
